

Philosophy 4: Introduction to Ethics Spring 2020

Professor: Aaron Z. Zimmerman
Office: South Hall 5707

e-mail: aaronzimmerman@ucsb.edu
Office Hours: Schedule Zoom Meetings

I. Required Reading: (1) J. S. Mill, Utilitarianism, (2) Immanuel Kant, Groundwork of the Metaphysics of Morals, (3) Other readings available on the course website:

www.aaron-zimmerman.com

II. Topics: This course is designed, primarily, as an introduction to “normative ethics” and we will spend most of our time discussing two of the three major traditions in ethical theory— Consequentialist and Kantian Ethics. But we will also spend some time discussing “applied” ethical questions concerning the morality of abortion, war, global economic inequality and our duties to future generations of humans and non-human animals; and questions about moral motivation and the kinds of reasons ethical theories can provide us for acting in one way rather than another. An effort will be made to read primary (historical) texts, and to criticize the views of some authors in light of the views of others.

III. Course Requirements: Students must (1) write two short papers (4-5 pages each; roughly 25% of the final grade each), (2) complete quizzes throughout the term (roughly 20% of the grade) and complete a substantive final exam on the theories and positions discussed in class (roughly 30% of final grade). Section attendance or substantive participation is mandatory— failure to attend Zoom discussion sections and/or participate in Gauchospace forums can adversely affect your grade (hence the “roughly” used above). DO NOT PLAGIARIZE. Do not use anything from the web when you are writing your papers. If you choose to do so (and I urge you not to) you MUST quote and cite everything you use. IF YOU USE SOMETHING FROM THE WEB AND DO NOT CITE IT, THAT IS PLAGIARISM. And if you plagiarize, you will fail the class and you may also be expelled from the university.

IV. Tentative Schedule

Handouts will be made available on all of the topics we will discuss. You should print out or at least download the relevant handout before listening to each lecture. Handouts can be downloaded by clicking on the link to the Phil 4 website from: <http://www.aaron-zimmerman.com/teaching/>
